SENATE PASSES WEBB SALARY BILL

'All Solicitors Will Be Paid Stipulated Sums if House Ratifies Measure.

THE GRAHAM RATE MEASURE

Chairman of Railroad Committee Offers Bill Providing for 2 1-2 Cent Passenger Tariff.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
RALEIGH, N. C., February 6.—The State Senate to-day passed the Webb bi'l, putting solicitors on salaries instead of fees, with the McLean amendment, but no solicitor to receive more than $2,509, to that sum, the solicitor shall receive to that sum, the solicitor shall receive only the amount of the fees.

There was also the introduction by Senator Graham, chalrman of the Rall-road Committee, of a bill providing 2 f-2-and 2-cent passenger fare, with interchangeable mileage, and a statement from him incidentally that the Senato committee, will dealing the co-central will. from him incidentially that the Sengie committee will decline to co-operate with the House committee in drafting a common rate bill since the two committees cannot agree. The Graham bill is understood to represent the Senate committee's views. The House is understood to tee s views. The House is understood to stand out for a 2-cent flat rate, with no second class.

Half Million for Insane.

The House received with favorable report from the Insane Asylums Commit-tee the Bickett bill for a $500,000 bond issue for enlarging the asylums and creating a hospital commission, and then after lengthy discussion, referred the bill to the Appropriations Committee to the Appropriations Committee.

A large number of local bills were passed in both houses

The joint Committee on Raliroads and Public Service Corporations voted to-day to recommend to the Legislature the adoption of a 2-cent flat passenger rate, and the abolition of second class fare. It is learned that Chairman Graham, of the Senate committee, was the only member of the committee who voted for second class fare. It was an executive session of the committee.

SPENCER, N. C., February 5.—During the past ten days the Spencer Methodist Church has been in the midst of a most successful revival, the preaching being done by Rev. D. H. Coman, general evangelist of the Western North Carolina Conference. His sermons have been deep and searching. Ho does not pose as a modern evangelist, but as an assistant to the pastor. Making, as he does, however, a modern application of the gospel, he has brought many new ideas to the large congregations greeting him in Spencer. He is considered one of the strongest preachers in the State, and his time is in great demand throughout the conference.

Scott, who is expected to arrive in New York to-day, is said to have been present at Madison Square one night about a year age, and, according to his story, was the means of preventing Stanford White from killing Harry Thaw, it is said he now has the revolver which White intended to use. He claims that White appeared at the Carden, and, meeting "Scotty," said he was going to kill Thaw, who was present with his wife. In teiling his story "Scotty" said: "I asked him if he had a gun, and he said that he had and intended to use it, and he half pulled out a business looking piece of artillery from his pocket. I grabbed it, and we had quite a scrap, for I was determined to get it away from him before anything happened."

The Note at Martin's.

The Note at Martin's.

Thomas McCaleb, the young Californian, who was with Thaw's party the night of the tragedy, was a witness during the afternoon session. It was he who testified that at dinner that evening Mrs. Thaw had suddenly asked her husband for a pencil, scribbled a few words and passed a folded piece of paper to him.

What was in this note the witness did not know, and he was not allowed, because of an objection by the district attorney, to testify as to what change of manner, if any, it produced in Thaw, it has been reported from time to time that it was in this note that young Mrs. Thaw, referring to White, wrote to her husband: "That b——— (blackguard) is here."

Jerome Is Silent.

Jerome Is Silent,
"We understand," said Mr. Delmas,
"that this note is now in the possession of the learned district attorney. We want to get at the contents of that silp of paper, believing it to be material evidence. We demand that the learned district attorney produce it."

Mr. Jerome sat silent. He tugged at his short, stubby moustache. There was absolute and dramatic stillness in the court-room as Mr. Delmas stood walting, and all eyes were turned on the district attorney. He continued to look at the floor. After waiting some little time, Mr. Delmas resumed: "I take it that the silence of the learned district attorney is not intended as a discourtesy, but a conception of what he feels to be his duty in the matter. We will attempt later; to prove the contents of the note."

My God, He's Shot.

McCaleb then recalled so far as he could the incidents of the night of the tringedy. He was leaving the roof garden with Mrs. Thaw, and thought Harry was following, when the three pistol shots were heard. Mrs. Thaw exclaimed: "My God, he's shot," and then, "Oh, Harry, what have you done, and why did you

Thaw replied: "I have saved your Iffe," and bent and kissed her.
On cross-examination, Mr. Jerome went briefly into the past history of the witness. Mr. McCaleb said he knew Thaw some years ago in Paris and subsequently in California.

"Did you ever try to borrow any money from him?" demanded the district at-

"Never," the witness replied. A Club Conference.

A Club Conference.

It came out during the redirect examination that McCaleb had met Mr. Jerome some months ago at the Union Ciub and discussed the case with him. The witness answered a question to which the district aturney had taken exception, and in which he had been upheld by the court. Mr. Jerome flared up in a rage:

"Why did you do that?" he demanded. "I call the court's attention to this man, this literary person—who says he has written two books—coming here and answering questions to which there is objection. It is indecent."

Mr. Delmas pleaded that while the witness may have been in error, the question was not important.

He said it was a misfortune to a man to have to testify in such a case, but he thought that nevertheless the witness was entitled to courtesy. Jusice Fitzgerald agreed on this post, but the purpose to the surperson was not benought that nevertheless the witness was entitled to courtesy. "I don't know-I had one with you," came the reply, and it was some time be came the reply, and it was some time be-fore the halliffs could restore order in the courtroom. Justice Fitzgerald threat-ened to remove any person who again created a disturbance. The courtroom was crowded at the time, many gally dressed women having been admitted by the court officers during the luncheon re-cess. For the first time since the trial began the court officers seemed to have began the court officers seemed to have let down the barriers to the idly curious.

Uncle Insane.

Dr. John E. Demar, who was on the stand yesterday, but not allowed to testify, was recalled to-day, and testified that Henry W. Copley, the defendant's uncle on the maternal side, had been insane. Mr. Jerome had declared early in the day that he would not object to the testimony as to insanity in the family provided that proper foundations were laid for it. When, however, Dr. Demar started to testify as to a cousin of the defendant, Mr. Jerome said he felt he must object again. He declared it should first Uncle Insane.

The Selwyn will accommodate 200 guests. Almost every room is connected with a bath. The house will be operated on the American plan.

In talking with a Times-Dispatch man yesterday, Mr. Lightfoot said: "We expect to make the Selwyn up-to-date in every particular. The building is well designed for convenience and comfort, and we are furnishing it with the most elegant stuff."

Prisoner Pale. Harry Thaw, who had shown alert interest during Boman's testimony as to the theats, said to have been made against him by Stanford White, later gave evidence of becoming faitgued, and yawned several times. The defendant today seemed paler than usual. As Harry Thaw entered the courtroom after recess, accompanied by his guard, the many women who had gained admission turned and craned their necks to obtain a sight of his pallid face, and a whisper and rustle of silk passed around the room which brought forth a sharp rap of the bailliff's gavel. Immediately after Boman left the stand to-day he was served with a subpoena for the prosecution. Counsel for the prosecution declared that Boman will not be permitted to leave the furisdiction of the court if it can be prevented. Ladies Leave Room. YOUNG MEN IN MUCH TROUBLE

The Countess of Yarmouth and Mrs. George Lauder Carnegle, Thaw's sisters, were in court to-day, and took a keen interest in all the proceedings. OLD SORES FED AND KEPT OPEN A great many people have an idea BY IMPURE BLOOD that old sores exist merely because of a diseased condition of the flesh where the ulcer is located. They sily because of the flesh where the ulcer is located. They powders, plasters and other external applications and their external applications on the readily the blood is at fault; this is impurities and poisons which are constantly the place, feeding it with noxious matter, the place, feeding it with noxious matter, the sore to heal. Old sores may be the result ant, or the effects of a long spell of sickness, or again contaminated with the collections of refuse matter mbers have failed to expel through the channels of nature. Whatever the cause the blood becomes steeped in poison and a cut, bruise, scratch or other wound often develops into a sore, fed and kept up by these impurities, causing it to eat deeper into the surrounding tissue, inflaming, festering and causing tissue, inflaming, festering and causing of the sore clean; they cannot cure the not reach the blood. S. S. S. cures Old Sores by the sore clean; they cannot cure the into treach the blood. S. S. S. cures Old Sores by the blood becomes rich and healthy, the sore begins ned, the place scabs over and is soon permanently and Ulcers and any medical advice free.

Haynes and the first August Miss MacKenz patiently apply salves, powders, plasters and other external applica-tions, but in spite of all such treatment the place refuses to heal. Whenever a sore or ulcer does not heal readily the blood is at fault; this vital fluid is filled with impurities and poisons which are constantly being discharged into the place, feeding it with noxious matter, which makes it impossible for the sore to heal. Old sores may be the result of an inherited blood taint, or the effects of a long spell of sickness, or again the circulation may be contaminated with the collections of refuse matter which the different members have failed to expel through the change of which the different members have failed to expel through the channels of
